VISUAL EXPLAINER

The universe as we know it has revolved around the concept of duality: good and bad, positive and negative, light and dark. However, as Yin and Yang in Chinese philosophy describe, these evidently opposite forces are interconnected and interdependent. The popular English idiom, 'comparing apples and oranges' is often cited to highlight incomparable elements or characteristics of two apparently different items. But are they really that different? Should they be treated as two different entities or rather as one which is bound together, complementing each other to form a mutual whole?

The advent of the 4th Industrial Revolution presents us with opportunities beyond the principles of duality and rigid divisions. Comparing apples and oranges seems possible. And the origin and stimulus of developing fresh perspectives are rooted in innovative and equal education.

ASEF's contribution is with the financial support of the European Union.
